Quirk was born in County Cork, Ireland, in 1857. He immigrated to the United States in 1878 and worked as a miner in Montana and Idaho before heading to the Yukon in 1897.

The Klondike Gold Rush was in full swing when Quirk arrived in the Yukon. Thousands of people from all over the world had flocked to the region in search of gold. Quirk was no different. He staked a claim on a creek near Dawson City and began to dig.

Quirk's claim was not initially successful. He worked for months without finding any gold. But he never gave up. He kept digging, and eventually, he struck it rich.

In 1899, Quirk found a large gold nugget worth over $10,000. This was a huge sum of money at the time. Quirk's discovery made him a wealthy man.

Quirk became known as "Papa Gold Bill" because of his generosity. He shared his wealth with other prospectors and helped to finance expeditions to find new gold deposits. He also donated money to hospitals and schools in the Yukon.

Quirk's wealth and generosity made him a popular figure in the Yukon. He was elected to the Yukon Territorial Council and served as a member of the Yukon Legislative Assembly.

In 1905, Quirk returned to Ireland a wealthy man. He bought a large estate and lived a life of luxury. However, he never forgot his roots in the Yukon. He continued to donate money to Yukon charities and organizations.

Quirk died in Ireland in 1919. He was 62 years old. He is buried in the cemetery in County Cork.
